Starting your research

The Library's collections offer a wealth of resources to the Australian family historian.

You will find frequently used family history material on microfiche and microfilm in a special area of the Newspapers and Microforms Reading Room. Check our guide to Family history sources in the Newspapers and Microforms Reading Room to see what we hold.

Many family history sources are available electronically. Check eResources for titles or browse Genealogy in eResources. You can find bookmarked free websites, networked family history CDs and subscription services. You will need to come to the Library's reading rooms to use some of these.

8. AIF Project

UNSW ADFA: This searchable database provides details on the 330,000 men and women who served overseas in the (First) Australian Imperial Force, 1914-1918. Information has been gathered from a variety of sources.

30. Census of Ireland 1911

National Archives of Ireland: This site provides the household returns and ancilliary records of the 1911 census of Ireland. A name index, transcripts and digitised images are provided and you may also browse the census returns by street. Coverage for all counties is not yet complete.

14. Eighteenth Century Journals: Newspapers and Periodicals 1685 - 1815

Adam Matthews: This service brings together rare journals printed between 1685 and 1815, illuminating all aspects of eighteenth-century social, political and literary life. Many are ephemeral, lasting only for a handful of issues, others run for several years. Topics covered are extremely wide-ranging and include: colonial life; provincial and rural affairs; the French and American revolutions; reviews of literature and fashion throughout Europe; political debates; and London coffee house gossip and discussion. The titles chosen have been screened carefully against other eighteenth century resources (many available at the National Library of Australia) to ensure minimal overlap. Available for document delivery to Australian libraries.

110. Old-maps.co.uk

Landmark Information Group: A digital historical map archive of 19th century Ordnance Survey maps of Britain. Maps are available to purchase.

138. Times Digital Archive [1785-1985]

Gale Group: The Times Digital Archive has millions of articles from the London Times. The entire newspaper is captured, with all articles, advertisements and illustrations/photos divided into categories to facilitate searching. Cross searchable with other Gale products via the Gale NewsVault.

35. Christchurch City Council Cemeteries Database

Christchurch City Council: This database includes interments from the following cemeteries: Addington Cemetery, Avonhead Park Cemetery, Barbadoes Street, Belfast Cemetery, Bromley Cemetery, Linwood Cemetery, Memorial Park Cemetery, Ruru Lawn Cemetery, Sydenham Cemetery, Waimairi Cemetery, Woolston Cemetery, Yaldhurst Cemetery.

135. Tasmania Gen Web

Tasmanian genealogy resources, including indexes of births & deaths, juror lists, post office directories, etc

eresources

We provide access to a large number of authoritative eresources: online journals, newspapers, magazines and websites, company information and Australian standards, legislation, music scores and recordings and encyclopedias. Much of this information in the eresources is not available freely elsewhere on the web. The Library also provides access to more than 100,000 ebooks and a large number of archived websites.

Access

All eresources can be accessed at State Library. Most are also accessible 24/7 away from State Library; all you need is SLQ membership or a Queensland Public Library (QPL) account. You can also get access if you are using a computer in a Queensland public library. There are some eresources which are only available at State Library. You can ask us for help in searching these eresources.

Apply now for SLQ membership or a QPL account (immediate access for Queensland Public Library members).

Finding eresources

Find thousands of eresources, including ebooks, in One Search, the library catalogue.

Find eresources that are available away from State Library, at home or in Queensland public libraries.

Find eresources by subject or title. State Library has excellent eresources in these subjects:

The National Library collects, and preserves for long-term access, snapshots of websites that document and reflect Australian society and culture. The selective collection of websites and web documents curated by the Library and its partner organisations is publicly accessible and is known as the PANDORA Archive.

Content may be found by searching the 'Archived websites (1996 - now)' section of the Library's discover service Trove, searching the Library's online catalogue (adding 'PANDORA electronic collection' to your search query) or by browsing subject listings and titles on the PANDORA Website.

THE WOMEN'S VOLUNTARY NATIONAL REGISTER

by Shauna Hicks

Ms Shauna Hicks, a Librarian at John Oxley Library and Convenor of the Queensland Branch of the Society of Australian Archivists has done extensive genealogical research in Queensland.

The Women's Voluntary National Register was an official record of the names of women who were willing and able to serve voluntarily in various capacities during the war. It was established at the request of the Commonwealth Department of Defence and the inaugural meeting was held on 14 March 1939 at the Brisbane City Hall with Major-General Sir Thomas Blamey, Chairman of the Man Power Board, in attendance. The Register originally operated under the Man Power Board and was financed by it with a grant of 300 pounds ($600) per annum. On 25 November 1941 new rules and regulations were adopted after a proposal was made to set up a Women's War Work Council which would have overlapped the functions of the Women's Voluntary national Register. Rather than start a new organisation, it was decided to revitalise the Register.

By 1 May 1942 nearly 15,000 women had registered throughout Queensland and the register was supplying approximately 300 types a month plus workers for various patriotic purposes. Women were trained in canteens and emergency cooking involving two days practical cooking for large numbers of men in the military camps and lessons in butchering from camp butchers.

Why should I correct the electronically translated text?

Trove searches across the electronically translated text. Much of this text has not been translated accurately due to the poor quality of old newspapers. By correcting the electronically translated text, Trove is immediately able to retrieve better search results for users. Corrections should be made to match the text that was originally published (without formatting).

How do I correct the electronically translated text?

Correcting the electronically translated text refers to changing the text in the left hand column to match the text as it was originally printed. Text corrections are saved to the database and will improve the service for all users by increasing the accuracy of search results. Below are instructions for how to correct the text. We have further guidelines on the specific ways to fix the text here.

Only the text as it appears can be changed. Changes that do not improve the accuracy of the text for searching (e.g. specifying formatting) are not currently supported.

In these days of literature when Education is so widely diffused that the ploughboy who formerly spent his Life on the somewhat monotonous plan of "whistling as he went for want of thought" as he led his horses that had about as much brains as himself, his repertoire of music being rather limited will now be preparing his Valentine for the coming 14th February or composing the love-letter to the Betsy of his heart, which he will hereafter indite in a style of calligraphy that would have made Alfred the Great or Charlemagne Alezr even Shakespeares Daughter pale with envy. In these days we repeat it is not to be wondered at that the Good Ship Sunda should feel a desire for literary food. In order to meet that to a certain extent we have ventured to launch forth this, the first Edition of the "Southern Cross" not by any means in opposition to but rather as a supplement to our able cotemporary (sic), who by the way is we believe meditating a change of name from the "Sunda Gazette" to the "Sunday Gazette". The serious tone of the articles
