- One family story was that GG grandfather had been eaten by a crocodile in Oxley Creek
- No death certificate. No inquest. No proof.

The Real Story

- His wife said (1887)
- "I was living at Oxley when he left me for a year and ten months.
- I took out a summons before for maintenance at lpswich about fourteen months ago. He was ordered to pay 10/- a week he did not pay it. He paid 8 pound 5 shillings as near as I remember. He gave me two pound about the beginning of July last.
- I have got seven children to support. One boy is working, three are able to do for themselves but four are not......,

by his infe for maintenance

This incident throws a lot of light on the attitudes of men towards women in the past. A policeman was commenting on GG grandfather's alleged assault on his wife.

The case was dismissed as the wife was not injured and the correction was not more than a husband is entitled by law to exercise

FOUR MEN REMANDED

SUSPECTED PERSONS

Four men appeared in the Police Court yesterday, before Mr. W. E. H. Perguson, P.M., charged with being suspected persons. They each pleaded not guilty, and were each remanded on a bail of £20, with one surety of 120. Senior-Sergeant F. B. Kearney appeared for the prosecution, Roy Matthews (21), motor mechanic, and Charles Davies (21), labourer, were each charged with having been found in a place adjacent to the warehouse of Noyes Bros. (Sydney), Lad., Adelaide Street, Brisbane, with intent to commit an indictable offence. Defendants were remanded until April 6.

John Foster, alias John Harrison, alias John Hardy (32), salesman, and Denis Finn, alias Denis Patrick Finn, alias Johann Romanoff (35), sales-man, were each charged that on March 31, at Brisbane, being a suspected person, he was found in the Town Hall with intent to commit an indictable offence. Both were remanded until April 9.

5 times a Night!

Relief in 24 Hours

BURNING agony of frequent but scanty passing of water-weakened control by day and night-pains in back and legs, or down through the groins-headache and dissiness-these are nature's warning signs. Neglected, they may mean the surgeon's knife or life-long misery.

Read this letter and decide right now that your own trouble is going to be over in the next ten days!

"After suffering for about eight years from weakness of the bladder and inflammation-scalding urine, making it necessary to get out of bed five or six times at night-and using many socalled cures without any result, I used Dr. Southworth's Urodyne, with such good effect that I am very hopeful of getting relief without a dangerous and costly operation .- B.W -- , Edward St., Queensland."

Urodyne is the special treatment of a world-famous scientist (and was used in Dr. Southworth's private practice for over 40 years). Thousands of men and women all over the world have gained auch astonishing relief that now Urodyne is dispensed by leading chemists only on strict condition

Keeping it in the family: father & daughter

My GG grandmother was

- aged 40, height 5ft 4 1/2ins, medium build, fresh complexion, brown hair, hazel eyes, second finger of her right hand dislocated
- She was Scottish, Presbyterian and could read and write
- The record also showed that she arrived in 1865 on board the Sunda.

Tattoos forever

My GGG grandfather was

- aged 32, height 5ft 4 1/2ins, stout build, fresh complexion, brown hair, blue eyes
- Scottish nationality
- tattooed with the Montrose coat of arms on his right breast, bracelets on both wrists and American colours on his right arm

Times Have Changed

- My GG grandmother's first 'crime' was to fall pregnant at the age of 16
- Child raised by his grandparents
- Then has an unhappy marriage
- Alcoholism, prostitution, homelessness followed (when not in gaol)
- Eventually meets another man, becomes respectable, dies a very old lady
- Yet no one in the family has ever heard of her!

Blame the Parents

- The family had several oyster farms in Pumicestone Passage near Bribie Island
- Whether or not I can credit her choice of profession to the aphrodisiac powers of the humble oyster or not, it does give me an alternative theory for her occupation
- Did she eat too many of her father's oysters while growing up?

ALLEGED ARSON CASE.

At the South Brisbane Police Court yesterday, before Mesers. W. Yaldwyn. P.M., T. Austin, and R. Alien, JJ.P., & middle-aged man named John Finn appeared in custody charged with wilfully and unlawfully setting fire to a dwellinghouse in Hampstead-street, Woolloongabba, last Sunday merning. Sab-impector Geraghty conducted the prosecution, Constable Coman stated that at about 7.30 on the morning of the 30th metant he saw defendant in Balaciava-otreet, Wook loongabba, when he said to him, "Where did you sleep last night?" He replied. "Nowhere." Then he said to him, "Where were you last night?" to which he replied, "I was over in town." In answer to further questions he said that he arrived in town from Ipswich "beand 10 yesterday tween He also said that he came over Dg." here soon after dinner time. Witness then asked him how long he remained over here, and he said for a while, after which be went over to meet the balf-past 5 train from Ipswich. Asked him then what time he came back, and he said, "I don't know; it was late; the shops and botels were closed." Defendant did not know either what time he got bome, and said later on that be slept on Nolan's veranda until he was awakened by the cold, after which he went for a walk round the cometery, and had only just come back. Then asked him if he knew where Hampstead-street was, to which he replied,

"Yes, well." Defendant said that it was about a month ago since he was in the locality referred to, and denied that he was there on Saturday night. Witness then conveyed defendant to the watchhouse, where he charged him with wilfully and unlawfully setting fire to a dwelling in Hampstead-street, Woolloongabba, on the morning of the 30th August. Defendant said, "What! Is it the place I was living in?" Witness said, "Yes." Defendant did not ask any questions. On the application of Subinspector Geraghty, a remand was grazted till the 8th instant.

ALLEGED ARSON IN SOUTH BRISBANG.

At the South Brisbane Police Court on Tuesday, before Messrs, W. Yaldwyn, P.M., and J. Austin, J.P., a middle-aged man named John Finn appeared in custody charged, on remand, with wilfully and unlawfully setting fire to a dwelling-house in Hampstead-street, Woolloongabba, on the morning of the 30th August. Mr. B. Papi appeared for defendant, and Sergeant Ryan prosecuted on behalf of the police, Constables Colman and Martin gave evidence as to finding marks of hob-nailed boots on the ground surrounding the house, and to taking plaster of paris custs of the impressions. One of these casts corresponded with the right boot of defendant. Emily Corrie, a married woman, living next door to the house lately occupied by defendant, and which he is charged with setting fire to, deposed to seeing a man enter the front gate of the property and try to wrench the gate off. He went away, returned, and subsequently went away again. She could not identify the man. During that night a fire occurred in the house next door to her residence. Evidence was also given by Mary Nolan and Mary Pinn, and on the application of the police, defendant was remanded till next Monday.

Coman asked him where he had stopped that night, and Finn replied, "Nowhere." In reply to further questions, Finn said he had come from Ipswich on the previous day, arriving in Brisbane about 10 o'clock in the morning, and about 3 o'clock in the afternoon had gue to Mrs. Nolan's, where he had dinner. He had stayed there some time, and had then gone to mest the 5.30 train from Ipswich. He did not know what time it was when he came back, but the shops and hotels were closed. . He went to Nolan's verandah and went to sleep, and he woke up very cold. He then went for a walk round the cemetery, and told the constables he had not long been back. Coman took him into custody, and with Martin, about 9.30 a.m. went back to Mrs. Nolan's, where they saw Mary Finn, and obtained from her a pair of boots and an overcoat. They then went to the house in Hempstead-street, and Comen made an examination of the ground in the yard, down from Bundamba, and to Mrs. Nolan's house. This was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Finn was a little the worse for liquor at the time, and Mrs. Nolan and his eldest daughter upbraided him for coming home in that state. They then told h m that he should look after his children mo e. and informed him of how the bailiffs had been put into the Hempstead-street house, and the furniture seiz d and taken away, and that his family had found food and shelter from Mrs. Nolan. Finn was naturally very much upset at the direful news. and commenced crying. His daughter then of hob-nailed boots. The different plaster got him some dinner, and advised him to go and get a bed at some boarding-house. After having his meal, Finn went away, leaving at Mrs. Nolan's his clothes, which included a pair of boots and an overcoat. He returned between 6 and 7 o'clock the same evening, and after a few minutes' conversation left saying he was going to see if a piece of wire he had put across the garden in Hempsteadstreet was still there. He took with him his overcoat. Before leaving he asked his daughter to go with him to see a house at Stanley Bridge on the following morning.

Mr. Noian's house was about half a mile by the road from Finn's late residence. When he took the plaster casts of the footprints the ground was hard, but there had been heavy rain during the night, and there was no doubt but that the impressions had been made during the previous 24 hours. The big gates were open, and anyone could go in and out without hindrance. been on the veranda for some time. Previous, however, to this, about a quarter past four o'clock, Mary Finn had been seen by Constables Coman and Martin. She told her father that they had been to the house looking for him, and he said he would go and see them and find out what they wanted. Before leaving he changed his boots. A Mrs. Emily Corrie said she lived next door to the house in which the Finn's had lived, and had known them for ten months. On August 29 she was on her veranda waiting for her husband to come home, when she saw a man coming from the direction of a paddock on the opposite side of the street. It was dark but she did not see the man's face, neither did she know him at all. All she could say was that he had an overcoat on and was wearing a dark an overcoat on and was wearing a dark hat. The man went into the gate of the empty house, and into the back, returning to the front he pulled up a few plants, which he threw into the road. He then

He was not there until after the fire, and could only say what he had heard. He did not see the fire. The daughter, Mary Finn, in giving her evidence, also stated that the family had been living in the house in Hempstead-street, which was the property of Sub-inspector Burke, for the previous 12 months, and that her father, who was working at Bundamba, only came home once a month. On August 22 the bailiffs had seized all the furniture in the house for rent. Her father was away at the time. He had not then been home for three weeks. This completed the evidence given on Tuesday, and Sergeant Ryan asked for a remand until to morrow, September 14, as some of his witnesses were unable to be present until then. The bench granted the remand, and allowed bailin £80 and one surety of a

Courts and Criminal Justice – Prison Records

The administration of gaols and penal institutions in the nineteenth century

Prior to 1871 penal institutions and gaols were separately administered by officers located within the Chief Secretary's Department (VA 475). In 1871 under the provisions of the Statute of Gaols Amendment Act 1871, the Inspector-General of Penal Establishments assumed responsibility for the administration of gaols, and a Penal and Gaols Branch (VA 1464) was established within the Chief Secretary's Department. The branch was responsible for the management of Victorian gaols and penal institutions and the control and supervision of the adults and minors who were detained.

The earliest penal institutions were almost entirely punitive in emphasis, while gaols were used for the detention of prisoners not sentenced to hard labour, such as debtors, lunatics, the old, the destitute and children who had been convicted of vagrancy. For more information about records concerning the administration of prisons, probation and parole, and for records of individual institutions see VRG 9 Prisons and Youth Training Centres and VRG 93 Corrections on PROV's online catalogue at www.access.prov.vic.gov.au.

Records relating to gaols and penal institutions: a select list

Victorian prisons were required to submit information about the prisoners in their custody to the Penal and Gaols Branch (VA 1464) of the Chief Secretary's Department. There was no state-wide centralised registration of prisoners until 1985. In the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries it was common practice for a prisoner to be moved directly from the court where the trial was held to a local prison, such as Beechworth. If the trial took place outside the Melbourne area researchers are advised to consult the records of local prisons. For records of individual institutions see VRG 9 Prisons and Youth Training Centres on PROV's online catalogue.

Viewing Online Male Prison Registers

The purpose of this How Toguide is to assist researchers with viewing digitised Male Prison Registers created between 1850 and 1935. It should be read in conjunction with PROVquide 20 Searching for Records Online and PROVquide 21 Ordering Records Online Please note that as June 2013 not all of the digitised volumes have been made available online. The series is being transcribed by volunteers and uploaded as they become available. If you are unable to locate a prisoner, please see for PROVquide 58 Prison Records further information.

Step 1: Access PROV's online catalogue at www.access.prov.vic.gov.au.

Step 2: Select Search within a series from the Searching menu.

Step 3: Enter VPRS 515 (Male Prison registers) in the search box and the surname of the prisoner you require. Press the Search button to complete the search.

PRISON AND GAOL RECORDS

The State Records Office holds many relevant series of records relating to State prisoners, some of which date back to 1830 and document the establishment of Perth's first gaol. These early records relating to prisoners and prisons in WA can be traced through the records of the Colonial Secretary's Office (CSO). See also further information on how to access CSO records.

Prison records during the convict period are also available although in many cases they are inextricably linked with the records of the Convict Establishment - as local prisoners during the convict period were classed as convicts. Records relating to prisons for this period can be located through the guide to Convict Records.

The majority of records listed below span the post convict period and relate to prisoners held in Western Australian prisons, gaols and police lockups.

NOTE: Prison records have a restricted access period of up to 70 years. Please see the Accessing Restricted Records section for information on how to apply for access to restricted records.

Departmental Records

The Gaols Department was first listed as a sub-department of the Colonial Secretary's Department in 1917, following the appointment of the Comptroller-General of Prisons under the Prisons Act 1903. The Department was responsible for the functioning of all prisons and gaols within the State.

Braidwood Gaol Entrance Book 1856-1899

Search the database | Home | Email Peter

This database was compiled from the list of Register entries of the Braidwood Gaol, New South Wales for the period 1856-1899. Unfortunately the exact date & reason for admission was not recorded in the register. An approximate time period was interpolated by using the ages of some of the "inmates." It must be stressed that travellers and others used the gaol's facilities as it offered the cheapest accommodation.

Brief History

http://members.pcug.org.au/~ppmay/braidwood.htm

Quoting from pages 100 -101 of Netta Ellis' book titled "Braidwood, Dear Braidwood. A History of Braidwood and District":

In 1861 a substantial two storeyed gaol and gaoler's residence costing £1819, was erected at the northern end of Wallace street, on the edge of the Police Paddock where the barracks for the Mounted police had been built twenty five years earlier. In 1862 the gaoler, R Waters, wrote frequently to Sydney requesting extra amenities; he wanted a well, a shelter shed, a shower bath for prisoners and a fenced area for growing vegetables. More secure locks on cell doors were necessary "to prevent a sudden rush by prisoners at night on a false call". In 1863 the cesspool at the gaol was reported to be "useless except for stagnant water". Dr Redhead reported that the latrines had been "receptacles of faeces of five hundred persons for the past ten months, and as the weather lately has been very muggy the contents emitted a most deleterious miasma which together with effluence arising from decomposition of soaked animal blood and the various

Boggo Road Gaol, one of the most notorious prisons in Australian history, is synonymous with rooftop riots, hunger strikes, protests and escapes. "Boggo" held many infamous inmates, including the Whiskey Au Go Go firebombers - John Andrew Stuart and James Richard Finch as well as the "Houdini of Boggo Road" Slim Halliday - who escaped twice. The remaining section of Boggo Road Gaol, Number Two Division, is just as it was when it closed. Plans to Erect Gallows in Queensland's Supreme Court Shelved

A museum exhibition about the end of hanging in Queensland opened in June this year at the new Supreme Court buildings on George Street, Brisbane. Capital punishment was abolished here back in 1922, and this exhibition marks the centenary of the last Queensland hanging, which took place in Brisbane in 1913.

I had helped the Supreme Court exhibition team with getting this together, including sourcing exhibit items, writing an article for the catalogue, and editing and advising with other text, so I personally found the final product to be both interesting and familiar. The
