Fast Facts

Public Record Office Victoria commenced operations on 17 April 1973 with the proclamation of the Public Records Act.

Using the Archives

Public Record Office Victoria holds a vast array of records created by Victorian Government departments and authorities including the State's courts, local councils, schools, public hospitals and other public offices.

The records date from the establishment of the Port Phillip District in the mid 1830s right through to today and include information relating to areas of activity managed or regulated by government such as the administration of justice, immigration, health and welfare, land, education, Indigenous communities, planning, transport, and resource management.

Newly opened Section 9 files reveal: The Yarra River Baby

Written by PRO_Vic on January 19, 2015 — Leave a Comment

21 December 1934 at approximately 9.30pm, Footscray labourer William Henwood watched as a young woman walked with her baby and suitcase towards Richmond Suspension Bridge on the bank of the Yarra River. Half an hour later she walked past him again in the opposite direction, this time the baby wasn't with her. In March the [...]

Future plans for the PROV Wiki

After a period of consultation with our users, we have decided to close the PROVwiki to new users from 1 May 2013. In addition we will be making content 'read-only' from mid 2013.

This staged freeze is so that we can migrate the content and activities that currently happen on the PROV wiki into an integrated new PROV website that we are developing. The new site has been designed specifically to take account of user-created material focussed around particular records and stories.

The new website will launch as a beta site and will run in parallel with the old websites for as long as necessary to migrate content and properly establish the new site. We will not be switching off the PROV wiki until the new site is ready.

We launched the PROV Wiki in 2008, with the intention of providing an online platform for users to contribute their knowledge of archival records we hold. The PROV Wiki has helped us learn so much from researchers who use our collection, and has helped us realise the importance and value of user collaboration. We really do value your past contributions and hope that you will continue to work with us on our exciting new ventures.

If you have any queries or feedback about our plans, please feel free to contact us at enquiries@prov.vic.gov.au

Catherine Hughston

Discussion

Biography:

Catherine and two of her daughters, Annie and Jane, signed the 1891 Women's Suffrage Petition. Their signatures on the petition are the only record of their direct involvement in the women's suffrage campaign. Nevertheless, each made their own mark on women's history in Victoria.

Catherine Hughston's mark was inadvertant: her personal financial misfortune resulted in improving the lot of married women in Victoria. She came from a properous family but when she married her considerable fortune went to her husband.

When her husband sold all her property without her consent and squandered the proceeds, it so angered her brother in-law James Buchanan, a member of the Legislative Council, that he devoted much energy to bringing forward the Married Women's Property Act (1884).

Changes to record limits in the PROV Reading Room

As of December last year, order limits have been reduced to 4 records per delivery, with a maximum of 12 records loaned out per person at any one time.

For many people this will have no impact, but we realise this may be an issue for some. To assist those affected, PROV will work with those current researchers who, because of the nature of their research, have been provided with higher user limits to determine a suitable interim arrangement.

Special requests can be made regarding order limits by writing to the Coordinator, Access Services via our Online Enquiry Form found on the "Contact Us" page of our website - <http://prov.vic.gov.au/contact-us>.

Researchers may also wish to consult the National Archives of Australia for records relating to the Australian Wheat Board (AWB).

- Function / Content

This series comprised plans for the construction and maintenance of the emergency wheat storage facility at Marmalake (also known as the Murtoa Stick Shed) and at Dunolly.

In 1939, following several discussions between the Commonwealth and State Governments and wheat growers, the Australian Wheat Board (a Commonwealth agency) was established. Under the Wheat Acquisition Regulations, the AWB was to acquire all wheat held in Australia (with some exceptions). Under the Wheat Acquisition Regulations, the AWB was also responsible for purchasing, selling, storing, protecting and shipping all wheat and wheat products in Australia.

In 1941, as part of the ongoing storage of wheat which could not be exported due to the Second World War, the AWB began planning for the construction of emergency wheat storages at Murtoa. The work was performed by the [Victorian] Railway Construction Branch, Board of Land and Works (VA 690) at the request of the Grain Elevators Board (VA 1057) on behalf of the AWB.

Construction of the facility began in 1942. The main storage facility was constructed from unmilled tree trunks and was completed by 1943. Construction of other buildings at the facility continued after this.

The plans were made by the Grain Elevators Board. Each plan included information regarding the site or name of plan; title of plan; and scale of plan. The plan was initialled by the various workers who drew, traced and checked the plans. The plans were then signed by the Engineer, Superintending Engineer and Chief Engineer. Not all plans were signed by all three engineers. Some plans also have the date of signature on them. All plans were assigned a number with the alphabetical prefix designating the size of plan, then a four-digit number assigned in sequential order.

- Recordkeeping System

The plans were arranged in alphanumeric order. Plans were given an alphabetical prefix and then a four-digit identification number, eg A1000, A1001, B1000, etc. The alphabetical prefix designated the size of the plan; plans were then registered in sequential order.

▼ Description of this Series

- How to use the Records

Refer to the consignment details and identify the register for the appropriate period.

- Function / Content

This series consists of volumes detailing summary information about persons appointed Justices of the Peace. Entries detail the name, address and occupation of the Justice, date and age on appointment, the bailiwick (legal area) and court attended as presiding Magistrate. A remarks column also details particulars relating to deaths or resignations which occurred during the active use of the register.

Related Records

Documentation relating to a Justice's appointment may be found in other sources, notably VPRS 7744 Staff Appointment Books and the Victorian Government Gazette. Papers were also originally included in VPRS 266 Inward Registered Correspondence.

For information on persons nominated for appointment as the Justices of the Peace, refer to VPRS 16151 Justices of the Peace, Nomination Book

- Recordkeeping System

From mid 1857 all items of correspondence received were registered through an annual single number system. This registration process was also extended to cover correspondence received since late December 1856 hence the earliest annual single numbers allocated in this sequence cover correspondence received 6 months earlier.

This portion of the series is controlled by VPRS 251, Inward Correspondence Registers and VPRS 252 Index to Inward Correspondence. Both these control records were replaced in 1955 by a subject based card system, see VPRS 7739 Registry Cards to Inward Registered Correspondence [Records Not Transferred].

The recordkeeping system changed in the mid 1960's to a system of subject based files though correspondence continued to be registered by annual single number. This change in procedures would ordinarily constitute the identification of a subsequent Record Series although for administrative purposes a single series has been retained.

1852 - 1857 Unregistered Correspondence

A small quantity of unregistered correspondence spanning 1852-1857 is also found in unit 1 of the P consignment. This correspondence is mostly from different officials in the Sale area.

Supplementary Unregistered Correspondence 1851 - 1858

The P consignment also included a sequence of supplementary boxes labeled 1A-20A. This sequence contained correspondence received between 1851-1858 which did not appear to have been registered in VPRS 251 or indexed in VPRS 252, although some items may have originally been controlled by VPRS 254 Registry Book 1853-1856. In order to make this correspondence accessible, it was re-arranged in 1968 by archives staff into numerous small sections. There are two major divisions. District (units 1115-1125) and Departmental (units 1108-1114 and 1126-1127). Contents within each section are arranged chronologically. The list detailing these records is included in the consignment details.

Subsequent Series

This series ended at the conclusion of 1986 when the method of registration changed to a computerised decentralised registry system known as VPRS 12607 General Correspondence Files, Registry 01 Corporate Management Division along with some other registries.

The series includes files top-numbered from several correspondence registries that operated within the Law Department during the 1980's. These are as follows:

▼ Description of this Series

• How to use the Records

For information regarding persons of a particular trade or occupation, consult the alphabetical index. The numbers listed are those allocated to each individual and allow the linking of trades and occupations with individuals.

• Function / Content

The Public Works Department (VA 669) had wide-ranging responsibilities for all public works and buildings, including construction, maintenance and fitting out of these buildings. Other major responsibilities included roads and bridges, ports and harbours, local government and water supply. Works completed included the reclamation of land previously swamps.

This series is a register of tradesmen and labourers unemployed in 1892, during a period of severe economic depression. Unemployed men are listed in consecutive number order with details of their name, address, occupation and previous employment, marital status and number of children and period of unemployment.

In the final Remarks column, comments are made regarding the age of children, other details about the persons responsibilities and an indication of employment by the Public Works Department or involvement in the Koo-Wee-Rup Drainage Scheme.

All volumes were completed during the winter months of 1892.

• Recordkeeping System

Each person was given a consecutive number with entries being made in this number order. Volumes are indexed alphabetically by trade or former occupation with the identifying numbers of persons of that occupation listed. There are no name indexes to the volumes.

Downloads

When I get the chance - I like to create useful lists of records as well as indexing certain records to allow greater access to the contents for folks who are too far away from PROV to check them out themselves. Although you won't find transcriptions of the full records below, you will be able to confirm if a name appears in the full record - and that is half the work done!

"Country Boys" Register

This register was created to record the details of boys from the city who were sent to work in the country, usually on farms. The record covers the period from December 1894 to April 1896.

INEBRIATE RETREATS

Northcote Inebriate Asylum Patient Index 1890-1892

The Northcote Inebriate Asylum was located where the present Northcote High School is situated. If you find a name in this small index, contact me for a digitised copy of the full entry.

The Lara Inebriate Retreat was located on the Lara Estate, 70km West of Melbourne towards Geelong. The main building was originally a mansion set on 640 acres.

LICENSED HOUSES

These establishments were defined as an "institution which held a licence granted by the Chief Secretary to house one or more insane persons". They were, in most cases, private residences converted for use as mental homes.
