Introduction

- Why it isn't all online
 - Only the tip of a very big iceberg
- Using Internet to find information – online indexes, transcripts, digitised records
- Using Libraries and Archives more effectively
- Don't forget local resources!

Why It Isn't All Online

- ▶ Still print publications in libraries
- ▶ Still manuscript/archival records in archives
- ▶ Information in microform or CD formats
- ▶ Might be handwritten card indexes
- ▶ Cost to digitise – money & time
- ▶ Only the most popular items online

Hazards of Not Getting the Whole Story

- Some people only use the indexes – don't get the document/certificate
- Index is bare info only – more details are on the original record
- Can make the difference between researching the wrong person/family or creating brickwalls

Using Internet To Locate Info Not Online

- Online catalogues to libraries/archives
- Guides to library holdings
- Fact sheets/guides on archival records
- All assist in finding out what is there that might be relevant to your research
- Some offer copying services

Using Libraries More Effectively

- Online catalogues
- Ask a librarian services
- Inter library loans
 - Books, articles, chapters
 - Obtain photocopies or digital documents

About the Catalogue

This catalogue contains records of the manuscripts, oral history and pictures collections of the Mitchell Library, Sir William Dixon Library and Dixon Galleries.

This new version of the catalogue contains additional content which has been transferred from paper based collection guides and contents lists that have previously only been available in the Mitchell Library Reading Room.

The inclusion of this additional rich content and the development of this new catalogue has been possible through the support of the NSW Government through the eRecords project. Published material including maps can be found in the State Library's Catalogue for published material.

For your information

Oral history

Oral history is the recording of memories of peoples' unique life experiences. It is a record of information gathered on tape as the result of a planned interview, and is a means of documenting the past by asking questions of people who have lived through a period or an event of interest. Through oral history the past comes alive as people share their lives.

JD Somerville Oral History Collection

The JD Somerville Oral History Collection was established in 1987 as the central repository for unpublished oral history tapes and transcripts in South Australia. The collection is intended to provide an oral record of all aspects of the South Australian experience and particularly of those who are poorly represented in documentary records, such as low income earners, people of non-English speaking background, women, and country people. The collection also provides a representative sample of the various uses of oral history, such as academic, commissioned, local history, community arts, school and family history.

The foundation collection was a Jubilee 150 project 'S.A. Speaks' consisting of interviews with 45 men and women who were broadly representative of South Australia in the first decades of the twentieth century. Since 1987 the community has responded with enthusiasm to the Somerville Collection and the Library receives more than 300 hours of recordings each year from practitioners including genealogists, local history groups, post-graduate students and professional historians.

Projects have included:

- interviews with the 'Barwell Boys' who emigrated to South Australia from Britain in their teens under a farm labourer scheme in the 1920s (OH 169)
- an Italian language interview with the matriarch of the Taddeo family who emigrated to South Australia in 1934 (OH 237)
- interviews relating to the development of the Christies Beach Women's Shelter from 1975-1981 (OH 255)
- interviews with returned servicemen and their wives who were soldier settlers at Loxton after the Second World War (OH 550).

The State Library either commissions or conducts a proportion of interviews each year which are designed to complement material in other collections within the Library or to fill gaps in the collections. Such projects have included interviews with prisoners, officers and administrators at the Adelaide Gaol before its closure in February 1988 (OH 19); older members of Aboriginal families in the South East of South Australia (OH 198); and eminent sculptors John Dowie (OH 524) and Silvio Apponyi (OH 562).

COLONIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE RECORDS

The Colonial Secretary's Office (CSO) originated with the appointment of Peter Broun Esq. as first Colonial Secretary on 30 December 1828. The CSO was established as the chief administrative office for the new Colony with the Colonial Secretary responsible for conducting the business of the Governor with the various Government Departments of the day as well as with the Colonists, collectively and individually.

The Colonial Secretary was a member of both the Executive and Legislative Councils from their formation in 1832. Following the attainment of Responsible Government in 1890 the position of Colonial Secretary was held by a Minister, with the Under Secretary becoming the administrative head of the department from that date.

The Papers include:

- ▶ petitions by convicts for mitigation of their sentences;
- ▶ requests for permission to marry;
- ▶ memorials attesting to the worthy character of potential settlers;
- ▶ applications for land grants or leases;
- ▶ reports on official visits;
- ▶ information about court cases and lists of assigned servants

- in fact anything to do with the colonial administration of the day.

Family History Research at PROV

Family History – Family History Research at PROV

Public Record Office Victoria (PROV) was established in 1973 as Victoria's archival authority. It is responsible for the preservation of public records that are considered worthy of permanent retention as evidence of government policy and activity. Public records are created by government departments and authorities, the State's courts, municipalities, schools, public hospitals and other public offices. They have value for historical, genealogical and other research, and document the status, rights and entitlements of the people of Victoria.

The records listed in this PROVguide are some of the most commonly used for family history research. Records can be ordered for viewing at PROV reading rooms at the Victorian Archives Centre (VAC), the Ballarat Archives Centre (BAC) or are available online, where indicated. See PROVguide 21 Ordering Records for information about record ordering, and delivery times at PROV reading rooms.

Wiltshire and Swindon History Centre

Welcome to the Heritage Services on-line catalogues

Introduction

Wiltshire and Swindon History Centre (opens in a new window) offers a 'passport to the past' for anyone interested in finding out more about the fascinating history of Wiltshire and Swindon. These on-line catalogues, some of them being published for the first time in October 2007, act as a kind of 'travel brochure', offering a way of browsing the extensive information we hold. However, like any good brochure, we hope it will also whet your appetite to visit us in person, or, if appropriate, to visit one of the county's libraries, monuments, museums, or sites.

It should be noted that the catalogues are far from complete. Not everything may be catalogued yet, or it may be considered confidential

If you have any query, please contact our experienced, professional staff using the contacts given within the homepages for each catalogue shown below.

@ CSU Regional Archives

CSU Regional Archives and University Art Collection is a combined-function repository on the South Campus of Charles Sturt University in Wagga Wagga. We have been collecting archival material from the Riverina and Murray regions since 1973 and the archival collection now extends to over 4500 linear metres.

Whilst we serve the University, its staff and students, our collections and advice are also available to the general public. We welcome anyone with an interest in local and regional history to visit our Search Room or contact one of our Archivists.

Conclusion

- What's not online is staggering
- You can use the Internet to identify some of this material
- But you still need to either research in person or have someone do it on your behalf
- The more in depth your research, the more you will know your ancestors!
